Overview

Geralyn Trujillo is a partner in DiCello Levitt's New York office and a member of the Antitrust and Competition Litigation Practice Group. With extensive experience litigating antitrust matters on behalf of government entities and as defense counsel, Geralyn brings a unique strategic perspective to her cases.

Before joining DiCello Levitt, Geralyn spent fifteen years in government service enforcing the antitrust laws at both the state and federal level. During her tenure at the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Competition, she served as lead attorney in significant matters resulting in commission victories and led investigations across a variety of industries, including healthcare, digital platforms, medical devices, consumer goods, and industrial products. At the Office of the New York State Attorney General, Geralyn investigated anticompetitive conduct and litigated cases involving pricing fixing and anticompetitive mergers and acquisitions.

Prior to her work in government, Geralyn spent ten years at an esteemed multinational law firm, representing public and private companies in antitrust matters, including mergers and acquisitions, civil antitrust litigation, and government investigations.

Geralyn is an active member of the Executive Committee and Diversity Committee of the New York State Bar Association's Antitrust Law Section and is a member of the American Bar Association's Antitrust Section.
